Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 42-47 and 59-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tornero (5,050,933). Tornero discloses the use of a child seat (10) comprising a seating surface (12); an armrest (16,17) connected to the base (13) on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable between first (fig.1) and second positions (fig.2); and wherein the armrest includes a connecting portion that slidably fits into a corresponding receiving portion of the base. In regards to claim 43, wherein the receiving portion includes a slot (31) for receiving a tab (25) located on the connecting portion. In regards to claim 44, wherein the receiving portion includes a second slot (26) and wherein the first and second slots correspond to the first and second positions of the armrest. In regards to claim 45, wherein the tab is attached to a flexible portion of the connecting portion of the armrest thereby allowing the tab to disengage with the slot when the tab is depressed. In regards to claim 46, wherein the connecting portion of the armrest includes a pushbutton (30) that engages one of a plurality of holes (27,28,29) in the seat base. In regards to claim 47, further comprising a base having a seating surface; an armrest connected to the base on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable between first and second positions, and wherein the armrest includes a connecting portion that slidably fits over a corresponding receiving portion of the base. In regards to claim 59, wherein the armrest (16) includes holes (27,28,29) for receiving protrusions (25) from the receiving portion of the base. In regards to claim 60, a base (13) including a seating surface (12); an armrest connected to the base on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable in a vertical direction, and wherein the armrest includes a tab (25) that fits into a receiving portion (18) of the base. In regards to claim 61, a base having a seating surface; an armrest connected to the base (13) on a side of the seating surface (12); wherein the armrest is adjustable in a vertical direction, wherein the armrest is movable over a receiving portion of the base; and wherein the receiving portion of the base includes a flexible tab and protrusions (25). See figures 1-5.

Claims 42-47 and 59-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wu (6,296,313). Wu discloses the use of a child seat (chair) comprising a seating surface (60); an armrest (11) connected to the base (fig.1, pedestal) on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable between first and second positions (fig.2); and wherein the armrest includes a connecting portion (10) that slidably fits into a corresponding receiving portion (30) of the base. In regards to claim 43, wherein the receiving portion includes a slot (31) for receiving a tab (21) located on the connecting portion. In regards to claim 44, wherein the receiving portion includes a second slot (42) and wherein the first and second slots correspond to the first and second positions of the armrest, fig.3. In regards to claim 45, wherein the tab is attached to a flexible portion of the connecting portion of the armrest thereby allowing the tab to disengage with the slot when the tab is depressed. In regards to claim 46, wherein the connecting portion of the armrest includes a pushbutton (20) that engages one of a plurality of holes (32) in the seat base. In regards to claim 47, further comprising a base having a seating surface (60); an armrest connected to the base on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable between first and second positions, and wherein the armrest includes a connecting portion (10) that slidably fits over a corresponding receiving portion of the base. In regards to claim 59, wherein the armrest (11) includes holes (32) for receiving protrusions (21) from the receiving portion of the base. In regards to claim 60, a base including a seating surface (60); an armrest connected to the base on a side of the seating surface; wherein the armrest is adjustable in a vertical direction, and wherein the armrest includes a tab (21) that fits into a receiving portion (30) of the base. In regards to claim 61, a base having a seating surface; an armrest connected to the base on a side of the seating surface (60); wherein the armrest is adjustable in a vertical direction, wherein the armrest is movable over a receiving portion of the base; and wherein the receiving portion of the base includes a flexible tab and protrusions (21). See figures 1-7.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following patents are cited to further show the state of the art with respect to child seat: U.S Pat. No. US005318347A, US006491343B2,
